Goals/Objectives/Student Outcomes:

Students will:

- Learn about the 72-year long effort for the enfranchisement of women in the United States.
- Understand Iowa Carrie Lane Chapman Catt's leadership role in that effort.
- Describe the work of the suffragists and the strategies that led to eventual passage of the 19th amendment to the United States Constitution.
- Analyze the major historical events between 1848 and 1920 regarding women's rights.
- Compare and contrast the arguments regarding women's vote.
- Distinguish the differences between women's place in society before and after the passage of the 19th Amendment.
- Describe Carrie Lane Chapman's Iowa background and leadership in the crusade for women's right to vote.

Older students will:

- Compare opportunities for women now with the pre-1920 opportunities.
- Extrapolate from the study of the 1848 situation regarding violence against women and assess the current situation regarding violence against women.

Materials:

1. Videos
2. Poster board
3. Goldfinch articles

Background:

Until 1920 only males were granted full citizenship in the United States. Women were treated as "second class citizens" because they could not vote. Women in 26 other countries had already won the right to vote before women in the United States gained that right. (Using an Overhead projector, show the cartoon about the word "suffrage" from The Goldfinch, 1989, p.31 as an introduction.)

How did women's suffrage come about in our country? Who were some of the courageous crusaders for women's right to vote?

Crusaders for the right to vote first had to organize in order to win the right to vote. The video, "Carrie Chapman Catt, Honoring the Dream," describes the organization and goals of the National Woman Suffrage Association. It was not easy to convince male lawmakers to change the United States Constitution. Supporters of women's suffrage had to be articulate debaters to convince others to support the issue.

What were some of the arguments for and against women's suffrage? Who actively supported suffrage in Iowa? Do we hear any similar arguments today on issues affecting women?

During the long effort to achieve the right to vote—the right of full citizenship—thousands of women wrote letters, button-holed their legislators, honed their persuasive speaking skills, and sold their rings and brooches to gain financial support. In the early years, women traveled by train—or even side car, horse drawn cart, bicycle. and carriage to make their views known.

During the last 20 years of that effort, Iowa Carrie Chapman Catt was the principal leader in the suffrage movement. She was a superb organizer and her skills and strategies were a key to her success. Once the 19th Amendment was passed, she realized the crusade was won but more work was needed to educate people to be responsible citizens. To accomplish this she founded an organization in 1920 to educate people how to exercise their right to vote and to prepare women to take their place in public office as elected and appointed officials. That organization is the League of Women Voters.

Procedure:

Lesson 1

Objectives:

1. To view the video documentary of the 72-year effort to gain the right to vote.
2. To recognize the names of major national leaders in the struggle.

Introduce women's suffrage by giving a brief history of the subject beginning with the Seneca Falls Women's Rights meeting of New York in 1848. Describe Susan B. Anthony's motivation for action, her associates in the Seneca Falls meeting, other women across the nation such as Amelia Bloomer—who lived in Council Bluffs and was an early crusader for women's right to vote—as well as the men who worked for women's suffrage.
Divide the class arbitrarily into two groups (not by gender, race or some other “loaded” dimension) then let half the class vote on some decisions that would affect them all. This exercise effectively leads into a comparison with the disenfranchising of half of the population.

Share the questions that will be asked at the end of the unit. This allows students to be alert to important concepts as they proceed through the unit and makes the learning of these concepts their responsibility.

Use a timeline (large poster) such as the one pictured in Goldfinch 11 (Sept. 1989): 16-17 to give the broad picture.

In addition to one or more of the above exercises, view the video, “Carrie Chapman Catt, Honoring the Dream.”

Assigned Reading for the Day:

Assignment for Day 2:

While watching video, list arguments for and against women’s vote.

Lesson II

Objectives:

1. To state the arguments used for and against women's suffrage in the 1900-1920 era.

2. To describe the role of Iowan Carrie Chapman Catt and other Iowans in the effort for suffrage in Iowa and the United States.

Introduce the subject by reviewing the video used in Lesson I and relating the assigned readings. Help the students understand the period 1915-25 by using statistics, the Twenties and by drawing upon their assigned readings.

Group them into small groups (dyads) and ask them to develop arguments that might have been used between 1900-1920 for and against giving women the right to vote. After allowing them up to 10 minutes, use those groupings to stage a debate.

Role playing, stage a speech as Carrie Chapman Catt might have made in front of a mixed group of citizens of 1900-1920. Assign roles such as hecklers, supporters, lawmakers, and presenters.

Use a chart to compare the arguments for and against allowing women to vote. Let students role-play arguments in support of or in opposition to the issue.

Assigned Reading:

Middle School—Above resource and “Keeping Up with the Times” in student text, Iowa Heritage in the American Revolution.

High School—Above resources and selections on Carrie Chapman Catt in Louise Noun, Strong Minded Women; Nancy Neumann, The League at 75; or Mary E. Palmer, “Carrie Chapman Catt”

Assessment of Outcomes:

In an essay or class debate present arguments for and against women receiving the vote.

Students will:

- describe in a class discussion the major players and their contributions in the suffrage movement.

- place on a timeline the important events leading to the passage of the 19th amendment and explain in essay form the strategies employed by suffragists.

- summarize in writing Carrie Lane Chapman Can's back-ground and her significant role in the crusade for women's right to vote.

Extensions and Adaptations:

Take a field trip to the Iowa Capitol to see the Iowa Women's Hall of Fame Exhibit.
Take a field trip to Charles City to see Carrie’s girlhood home and have her work described by Rhoda McCartney, 515-228-3336, President of the 19th Amendment Society of Charles City.

Invite Jane Cox, playwright and actress in the play "Yellow Rose of Suffrage" to present at a student assembly. Jane Cox, Iowa State University Theater, 210 Pearson, 515-294-9766.

While in Ames, tour Carrie Chapman Catt Hall, Iowa State University, contact Carole Horowitz, Iowa State University, 515-292-9454.

Use the "Know, Want to know, Learned" process to review the unit.

Write articles for a newspaper on the passage of the 19th Amendment or prepare articles for a special edition of the newspaper.

Invite women who voted for the first time in the 1920s and 30s who could recall their feelings at being able to vote for the first time.

Contact your local League of Women Voters and invite several members to share their knowledge on voting and participation in the political process.

Plan a special event for the community to coincide with Women's History Week in March.

Supplemental Curriculum Unit Available:
Eisenberg, Bonnie. "Woman Suffrage Movement 1848-1920," available from National Women's History Project, 7738 Bell Road, Windsor, CA 95492; 707-838-6000. This is an excellent unit designed to be used in a history or government class in grades 5-12. It includes questions for research and discussion, historical photos, suggested class activities, and information about African-American suffragists. It would be a good resource to accompany the unit on Iowa Suffrage.

Journals:
6. Stephanie Pratt of Iowa Commission on the Status of Women is available to speak to Central Iowa schools and civic and social organizations about woman suffrage during 1995, the 75th anniversary of suffrage. For more information, contact Pratt at 515-281-4470 or 800-558-4427.
7. The Des Moines Playhouse performs a 1/2 hour interactive play about the life of Iowa suffragist Carrie Chapman Catt. The play is especially targeted toward grade school children, with audience interaction following. For more information, contact The Playhouse, 515-277-6261.

Quotes From Carrie Chapman Catt:
"The chief end of all of us is to build a good society."
"Service to a just cause rewards the worker with more real happiness and satisfaction than any other venture in life."
"Failure is impossible." (Susan B. Anthony's last public words. Carrie always had this motto hanging in her office.)
"We hold these truths to be self evident that all men and women are created equal." (From the Seneca Falls document—Carrie quoted it often.)
"Don't give up. March forward." (Words after a New York defeat)
"I have lived to realize the great dream of my life—the enfranchisement of women."

"We are no longer petitioners, but free and equal citizens." (Upon winning the vote)

"Women have suffered agony of soul which you can never comprehend, that you and your daughters might inherit political freedom."

"Progress is calling to you to make no pause. ACT! "Fight forward bravely and with great understanding."

"Give yourself." (Closing of her Iowa State College commencement address)

"Working for suffrage is not a duty; it is the privilege of a lifetime."

"The vote is a power, a weapon of offense and a defense, a prayer. Use it intelligently, conscientiously, prayerfully."

"I much prefer to give the little I have to the living causes of this day rather than to a memorial of the past."

"Women, are you ready now to go gather as the women did at Seneca Falls and lay out a program of wrongs still to be righted and of rights to be attained?"

"The national organization had no money, but they agreed to send what was better than silver or gold, Mrs. Carrie Lane Chapman." (From a Colorado newspaper after the state's successful suffrage campaign)

"I remember the world used to say of a married woman, 'She has clothes, shelter and food. What more can she want?' I am skeptical about the contentment of these women."

"If the women went home as full of convictions as my garments were of perspiration, it was a success."

"With the same consecration to a great cause manifested by the pioneers who set our feet upon the path leading upwards, with the same devotion revealed by those who came after and performed drudgery of weary years, you free women of America, must lead on to the ideal democracy never yet attained, but which alone can salvage civilization."
